TWO NEW VOLUMES OF POETRY.

SONGS in EXILE, and other Poems.

By H. E. CLARKE.

"Mr. Clarke is a poet sans phrase, and we should not have included him in this omnium gatherum of minor singers had it not been for a certain tone of imitation, chiefly of Walt Whitman and Mr. Swinburne, from which in these 'Songs in Exile' he has not known quite how to disenthrall himself. But that he is a poet, and not a minor poet, we have but little doubt. Nor do we think that anyone who reads the following poem on 'Age' will have much doubt either. . . . He has some spirited 'rebel songs' and some tuneful agnosticism, of both of which we feel some suspicions as to their sincerity, but none whatever as to their goodness. Altogether, this first book of his is the most interesting of its kind which has been published for some years."—Academy.

GASLIGHT and STARS: a Book of Verse.

By Rev. FREDERICK LANGBRIDGE.

"Contains a great deal of genuinely good work. Mr. Langbridge has attained a wholly exceptional polish and grace of form and expression, while nearly every piece in the volume is inspired with an ardour of passion which, if it be not idealism, is the best possible substitute for it, because it creates in the mind of the reader the impression that the poet is proclaiming that which he feels, and is not writing for writing's sake."—Scotsman.

LORD BEACONSFIELD: his Life, Character, and Works. A Critical Study. By GEORGE BRANDES. From the German by Mrs. GEORGE STURGE. Demy 8vo, 10s. 6d.

THE "TIMES."

"Herr Brandes' information is copious and singularly accurate so far as we have tested it; and his literary criticisms at least are sound, penetrating, and genial. As a biography, his work is far more valuable, because more concise and impartial, than any which has appeared in England. As a criticism, it is generally instructive, and often suggestive."

VANITY FAIR.

"Herr Brandes is the first author who has touched the personality and history of Lord Beaconsfield with anything like scientific critical method. . . . As a rule his work is really remarkable for sound conclusions and calm sense."

NEW NOVEL, BY THE AUTHOR OF "FLITTERS, TATTERS, AND THE COUNSELLOR." CHRISTY CAREW. By the Author of "Hogan, M.P.," "The Hon. Miss Ferrard," &c. 3 vols., crown 8vo.

"Christy Carew" is a very clever book, displaying in many places passages such as one has at present the right to expect from George Eliot alone. Is the authoress to be her successor? There are not a few now watching her career with great attention who think she can be if she only chooses."—Morning Post.
